Police searching woods for body

By RICH ADAMS
Waveland Police are searching a heavily wooded square-mile area in the city for the body of a jail escapee from Mobile County, Ala., who allegedly was shot by a fellow escapee in January.

Waveland Investigator Robert (Poochie) Tartavouille led police and other city employees using tractormowers as they scoured an area between Lakewood and Lakeside. Drives Thursday and Friday looking for the body of Harry Brunsfield, 25.

"We'll be very lucky if we find anything," Tartavouille said as he dug his foot into a pile of eight-to-ten-inch-deep pine needles at the scene.

Shag Pyron announces candidacy

W.H. PYRON
Highway Commissioner W.H. "Shag" Pyron announced his candidacy for re-election from the Southern District to the Mississippi Highway Commission.

Pyron has served South Mississippi as highway commissioner since 1968. He is a resident of Hazlehurst and a 1952 graduate of Mississippi State University, where he played football, was a member of several school organizations and president of the Marketing Club.

Pyron is a former coach at Hazlehurst and Southwest Junior College, and also for 12 years he was engaged in the construction and equipment business.

He is active in the Mississippi State Alumni Association, a member of the Mississippi Cattlemen's Association, on the Leadership and Training Committee of the Boy Scouts, a member of the Hazlehurst Chamber of Commerce and the Touchdown Club, a member of the Copiah County Planning Commission, and is a deacon in the First Presbyterian Church.

He is married to the former Carlene Feller of Hazlehurst. They have three sons, William, Craig and John. In his announcement for re-election, Pyron pledged "to continue the progress made over the last 12 years in providing highways for the people of South Mississippi — second to none in the State or Nation."

Sheriff's Department and a Stennis Airport pilot conducted an unsuccessful search for a plane that had allegedly crashed near Stennis Airport early Thursday morning.

"Mayday, Mayday—we're out of fuel," C.L. Macgallagher heard about 2 a.m. Thursday morning on channel 19 of a citizens band radio.

"I just saw a plane barely clear the tree tops," Keith Farris reported to the Hancock County Sheriff's Office about 2 a.m. Thursday.

Macgallagher, a NASA security worker, was driving east on I-10 about two miles from the Diamondhead exit, Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan Ladner explained, and Farris, an employee of Phillips Petroleum, made his observation from the company's natural gas scrubbing plant off Texas Flat.

was caught. Ms. Bourgeois was not very pleased with the catch, as her expression in the picture below reflects. Members of the Gun and Rod Club said the event was the biggest yet, and growing each year. (Staff photo-Rich Adams).

Shuttle launching stalled again

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
The chief administrator of National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Dr. Robert Frosch, said Thursday at NSTL the first launching of the space shuttle will probably be in the early part of 1980. Originally, September 1979 was planned for lift-off of the space vehicle, the date was then moved back to November 9, 1979, and now plans are for 1980.

"I'm not about to hurry it (the space shuttle launching)," noted Frosch, during his tour of the NASA facility here Thursday.

The administrator attributed the delay to problems with the outer insulation and engine of the shuttle craft. Frosch said his NSTL visit is part of a tour he is taking of many NASA sites. Some of the events which marked Frosch's visit included a 100-second engine test at a SME Test Complex.

The engine tested is a preliminary flight certification engine used for research and is identical to engines used in the space shuttle, Public Affairs Director Mack Herring explained.

Frosch who said this was the first time he had witnessed an engine test, intoned "It's nice to see how the engine runs."

Sally Ride, a female astronaut candidate also visiting the site, said witnessing Thursday's engine testing was a first for her as well.

The candidate said she was visiting the site to "learn about the shuttle engines."

Youth Court 'clarifies' 2nd juvenile jailbreak

By RICH ADAMS
Hancock County Youth Court officials said Friday they did not "insist" on placement of a 15-year-old youth charged with shoplifting in a County Jail juvenile cell from which the boy escaped last week.

Youth Court Administrator Charles Carter and Counselor Jerry Sirbaugh said they merely pointed out to the sheriff's radio dispatcher that the youth should, by law, be placed in one of two juvenile detention cells in the county jail.

Last week Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan J. Ladner said the youth, who escaped Sunday through a broken air conditioning vent, was placed in the cell on the insistence of Sirbaugh.

Another juvenile had escaped through the vent May 20 and was captured after he jumped from the Bay St. Louis public pier and clung to a piling.

Ladner said last week Sirbaugh insisted the youth be moved from an adult cell behind the county jail and placed in a juvenile detention unit.

Sirbaugh said Friday he did not insist. JAILBREAK-Page 5

Correction

The Sea Coast Echo reported in Thursday's edition that Hancock County Community Action Coordinator Athalia Piernas said the Bay St. Louis Utility Department is responsible for the city's natural gas rate structure. Mrs. Piernas said Friday, however, the Bay St. Louis City Council is responsible for that rate structure.

Louisiana man arrested here for possession

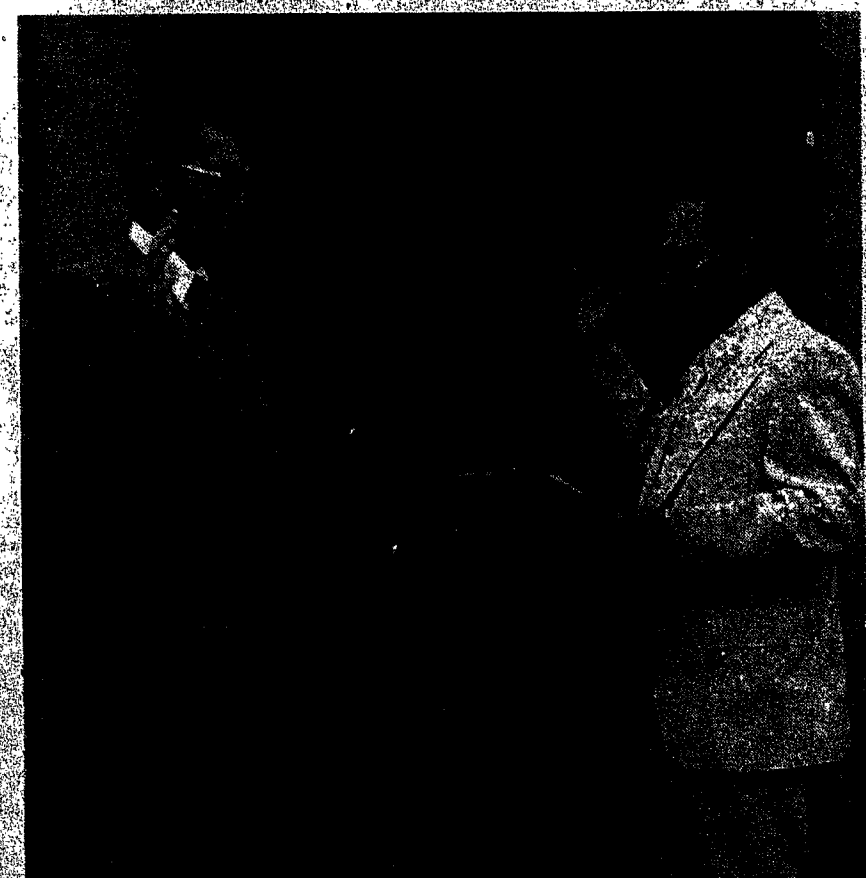

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
A 22-year-old Louisiana man accused of carrying a suitcase containing 18 lids of Columbian marijuana valued at $35 per bag was nabbed by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department Friday, police report.

Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan Ladner, said he and Deputy Dennis Tartavouille arrested Wayne P. Bergeron, 22, of Patterson La. at approximately 2:30 p.m. at the Bay St. Louis Greyhound Bus Station.

"I received a tip Bergeron would be there with the goods," Ladner said. "When Tartavouille and I arrived at the bus station Bergeron was in the bathroom, we searched a small handbag he was carrying and found 17 lids of marijuana. He had an additional bag in his socks," the sheriff stated.

Bergeron said he bought the marijuana for $500 in Florida, said the sheriff.

Ladner said Bergeron was charged with possession of marijuana with intent to sell, and is being held under $100,000 bond.

Molded Custard With Sauce Makes Never-Miss Dessert

All those who cook should have one fool-proof dessert recipe tucked away—a never-miss favorite that consistently looks beautiful and tastes great!

If you're among those still searching for such a gem, here's a suggestion: Individual Molded Custards topped with Raspberry Currant Sauce. This special after-dinner elegance gets a head start with refrigerated molded custards from Swiss Miss, found in the dairy case. No one will ever guess you didn't whip up these creamy treats from scratch after you unroll and slip them onto a crystal dessert dish.

The topping—luscious Raspberry Currant Sauce—is equally easy to prepare—and can be served warm or cold. Just spoon it over the individual custards and you have a never-fail dessert for all seasons!

RASPBERRY-CURRANT SAUCE

1/2 cup currant jelly
1 box (6-oz) frozen raspberries, thawed
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons water
In small saucepan, combine jelly, raspberries and lemon juice. Blend together cornstarch and water; add to ingredients in saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until jelly is melted and sauce thickens and boils; remove from heat. Serve warm or cool. Makes about 1 1/2 cups sauce.

Toth sculpture donated to Library

By JOE PILET

Dr. and Mrs. Paul A. Pursley and the staff of the City-County Public Library extend an invitation to unveiling ceremonies of sculptor Peter Toth's bust of an American Indian Wednesday, at 3 p.m. in the Crawford Memorial Room of the Library.

The statue is a gift from the Pursley family "to be enjoyed by library patrons."

Peter Toth, Hungarian born artist, is well known in Mississippi. In 1975-76 he spent untold hours sculpting an Indian statue from a 1,800 years old cypress log which is located on U.S. Highway 90 in Ocean Springs.

That work is a memorial to the suffering of American Indians.

Toth's magnificent obsession is to leave a trail of American Indian monuments in each of the United States as an artistic protest against the plight of the American Indians.

"I wish to honor the Indian as the proud, brave and dignified people they are," Toth said.

At the age of eleven Toth with his family moved from Europe to the United States. As a child he studied the history of Indians in his adopted country and felt they had been betrayed.

Declining payment for his monuments as well as commercial promotional offers, Toth feels strongly the mission of his life is to remind people of the contributions of the Indians to this country.

He hopes the monuments will help "change things" and "wake people up."

The sculpture to be dedicated Wednesday was given to Dr. Pursley by Toth, and Dr. Pursley said: "I feel this work should be placed in the library where it can be seen and appreciated by all of our people."

County Library summer reading theme is 'Summer of Champions'

By PRIMA WUSNACK
Library Director

Gymnastics, boxing, skating, track and field events and skiing — just a few of the many events which make up the Olympics. But you don't have to wait until 1980 to enjoy these events. You can enjoy them now — by participating in the 1979 summer reading program at your local library.

Open to all school-age children in Hancock County, the summer reading program will be based on a theme of the Olympics.

The program, called the "Summer of Champions" will offer special activities for six weeks.

Parents of children with physical handicaps preventing them from holding or reading a book should contact City-County Library at 467-5282 for information on obtaining free "talking books" and "talking book machines" so that they too can participate in the summer reading program.

Participants will be offered a wide assortment of books on a variety of subjects throughout the summer.

Each 1979 summer reader in Hancock County will receive a bookmark, reading record and certificate in recognition of their participation.

Every school-age child is invited to participate in the "Summer of Champions" this summer.

Parents are encouraged to visit their nearest library and register their children on June 7.

The reading program, an annual event in Mississippi, is coordinated on the state level by the Mississippi Library Commission under the direction of Mrs. Madel Morgan, special programs consultant. On the local level, the program is coordinated by June Dearman of the Hancock County Library System.

Activities offered in the 1979 summer reading program are:

Fatal boating accidents at all-time low in 1978

The fatality rate for pleasure boating accidents reached an all time low in 1978, according to the U.S. Coast Guard.

There were 9.4 boater deaths for every 100,000 boats in 1978, compared to a fatality rate of 9.6 in 1977, the previous lowest rate.

However, total deaths in boating accidents increased by nine last year.

In all, 1,321 boaters died in 1978, up from the 1,312 who died in boating mishaps in 1977. This increase may be partly attributable to the 450,000 more boats estimated to be on the waterways in 1978 than in 1977, the Coast Guard reported.

Some 8,576 boats were involved in 8,529 reported boating accidents throughout the United States. In addition to the fatalities, 1,761 people were injured and $12,301,200 worth of property damage resulted from these accidents.

The injury figure is lower than that recorded for 1977, but the amount of property damage is the highest on record, the Coast Guard said.

New Jail a Must

We are happy to see the Hancock County Board of Supervisors become interested in the need of a new county jail.

We just wonder how the current jail hasn't been condemned by some agency of the Federal Government as other jails and prisons have over the Nation.

There is a serious need for a new jail in Hancock County as well as a central communications system for all law enforcement agencies.

With Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett and Mayor Johnny Longo of Waveland apparently in favor of a central jail, there shouldn't be very many problems in making it a reality, especially with A.A. (Dolph) Kellar, the president of the Board of Supervisors, in favor.

We know there will be those who will say it won't be possible because of a lack of funds.

Hard work in Picayune and Poplarville enabled a city and a county jail to be built with federal funds, the political leaders didn't just talk about the need of new jails - they got on the ball and went seeking Federal funds.

So what happens, Picayune has a new jail opened this year. Poplarville has a new county jail opened this year. Hancock County has the talk of a new jail.

If all governing bodies could get together, and they have indicated their intentions of doing so, we could have a new jail within a year or so.

There are a lot of Federal funds which could be sought for such a venture and even if the Federal monies are not available at this time, a lot of ground work could be done now which wouldn't have to be done when funds are available.

Many a Grand Jury has reported the need of a new jail. Sheriff Sylvan J. Ladner has expressed the need numerous times.

The recent jail break attempt by prisoners picking a lock on a cell door and tying up a trusty puts more emphasis on the need.

With a unified effort on the part of the Board of Supervisors, municipalities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, Hancock County Sheriff and the voters of Hancock County, we could have one of the most modern jails in Mississippi.

THE O.C.S. COMMITTEE

Disputes between various departments of the federal government are pretty much commonplace, and sometimes, a congressional committee with clear-cut oversight can help to bridge the gap. That's part of the work of the Select House Committee on the Outer Continental Shelf.

We have reason to believe that there is a vast potential for as yet undiscovered oil and gas resources offshore in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and the Gulf of Mexico. Finding those resources and producing them to help solve our nation's energy problems is a matter of vital interest.

The role of the select committee primarily is to see that legislation approved during the last Congress is carried out. I serve on the panel and we are making efforts to provide the means for developing off-shore oil and gas, while taking into consideration every environmental concern.

We have reason to believe that there is a vast potential for as yet undiscovered oil and gas resources offshore in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and the Gulf of Mexico. Finding those resources and producing them to help solve our nation's energy problems is a matter of vital interest.

The role of the select committee primarily is to see that legislation approved during the last Congress is carried out. I serve on the panel and we are making efforts to provide the means for developing off-shore oil and gas, while taking into consideration every environmental concern.

But back to the dispute between those two departments. The Department of Energy and the Department of the Interior are jointly charged with some responsibilities in the O.C.S. law. So far, the Interior Department has been moving very slowly to implement its portion of the law.

For example, making an estimate of production goals from the O.C.S. was the task of the Energy Department, and its report was to be used for the establishment of a five-year leasing schedule by the Interior Department. Yet, the Interior Department ignored the report.

Initial committee hearings have brought to light some turf battles between Energy and Interior over which department will write the rules for what portions of the law. I had hoped that these two departments would follow the example set when Congress created the select committee, taking jurisdiction from nine standing committees of the House, and placing cooperative responsibility into a central body.

Now, President Carter has become the third successive president to call for acceleration of lease sales in the areas off the Coasts. He urged that some 14.5 million acres be under lease by 1981, so that we can get to the business of finding energy.

For some seven years, Congress has been grappling with plans for our energy future. About 17 percent of all domestic oil and gas now comes from the continental shelf, and prospects are that the shelf will increase in energy importance between now and the 1990's.

Overseeing a wide variety of regulations (about 32 sets in all) will be a challenging task for the select committee. But it must be done if this country is ever to reach energy self-sufficiency.

I hope the committee will help to solve jurisdictional disputes whenever possible within the administration and help implement a leasing program that will enhance development of our off-shore reserves.

MISSISSIPPI CONSUMER REPORT

A Service of the Consumer Protection Division Of The Office Of
A. F. Sumner, Attorney General

Q: I got a letter from a development offering me gifts and gas money to come look at some land. Is there a catch to this?

A: With the reduction of the work week and longer vacation time, many people are looking for a place to enjoy their time off from work-a place to get away from it all; a place to enjoy the peace and relaxation of country living.

Land sales schemes in recent years have been geared to the sale of resort and vacation property.

Some of these land developments offer free meals, free trips, free dishes, and other contests and prizes to attract consumers.

And the number on consumers taken in by these offers-Mississippians who think they are going to get something at no cost in time or money to themselves-continually increases.

The catch-almost always such free offers will cause you to spend more time than you anticipated and more money than you can afford.

Be careful in buying any property. Too often the retired couple or the middle-income family are the targets of land fraud schemes.

Watch out for misrepresentation by land developers. The problem usually arises when a high pressure seller, who is eager for a commission, makes representations in the sale of the land which are not backed up by the sales contract.

Another problem is in the area of taxes. Check the contract to determine who will pay the taxes on the purchased property-you or the developer.

Below is a checklist of some items to consider when purchasing a lot from a land developer:

Have you done the following: Read and understood the property report. Gained a complete understanding of your ownership rights.

Do you clearly understand all of the various assessments and charges that can be levied against your property?

Have you insured that your deed is properly recorded and that there are no liens, previous mortgages, or assessments against the property?

Have you purchased title insurance for the property?

Are sufficient escrow funds or lands set aside to help guarantee completion of the planned development?

What protection is provided in the event the developer declares bankruptcy, and a mortgage lender acquires a lien on the entire project?

Have you reviewed state laws and regulations affecting such a development?

If you answer these questions to your satisfaction, then your vacation property will be a heaven and not a headache.

Excessive Tanning Brings Skin Cancer

A sunburn, though painful, is temporary. Other problems caused or aggravated by sun exposure are longer lasting and more serious.

The threat of skin cancer is not a concern of the occasional sunbather, but the evidence is clear that repeated and persistent exposure to sunlight can be one of the major factors in causing cancer of the skin in susceptible persons.

An American Medical Association pamphlet points out that skin cancer has long been an occupational hazard to the farmer, sailor and rancher. Ardent outdoor sportsmen and sun worshippers share the same risk.

Cancer of the skin occurs more often in the South and Southwest, areas noted for sunny climates. Skin cancer occurs most frequently on exposed parts of the body, face, ears, hands or neck. Skin cancer occurs more often in light-skinned than in dark-skinned persons.

Although problems and shortcomings usually receive all the attention, we must never forget that we have a truly great country. There is real reason behind the feeling of pride that causes us to want to stand up when the American flag passes by.

America is great because of the opportunity our country offers every individual to learn and earn his or her way to independence and personal freedom. It is this opportunity and the way in which Americans have taken advantage of it that has brought us to our current position of strength.

We must continue to place high value on personal independence and continue to work hard to keep it if we are to maintain our greatness as a nation.

The most serious threat to personal freedom and national strength is the potential for becoming a 'soft' people. I am talking about those who are looking for something for nothing, or those who fail to give a full day's work for a full day's pay. These are the people who are creating a weakness in the American system.

It is more and more evident that many people are willing to take hand-outs rather than working to support themselves. I am talking about individuals who are able to earn their own way, but refuse to do so. There will always be those who are not capable for one reason or another of making their own living. Americans have always provided for those who can not provide for themselves, but it is not our responsibility to provide for those who are able but will not provide for themselves.

Perhaps even more troublesome to our economic system are those who are holding jobs and drawing salaries, but are not giving their full effort. Some workers are spending large parts of their day loafing on the job. This lack of productivity causes labor costs to soar. Those high costs which are passed on to consumers in the form of higher prices are a major part of our intolerable inflation problem.

Although these problems are serious, they should be faced with optimism rather than pessimism. There are still a great majority of Americans who remain committed to the old fashioned idea of honest hard work. We must simply recommit ourselves to that high standard and teach our young people to value the opportunities available to them through hard work. We must not forget that America was built on hard work.

It is by no means too late to begin steering our nation back toward greater individual productivity, but we can not take the easy way and do nothing. We must start by recommitting ourselves, and follow through by providing proper training to our young people at home and on every educational level.

We must begin now to toughen up so we can avoid fatal softness in the future.

A main propulsion test, had been planned for Froesch's viewing, but the test was postponed "to repair a pipe supplying coolant to the nozzle on one of the three engines," NSTL officials reported.

"X-ray inspection of the engine nozzles indicated a crack on the pipe in the same area where a break occurred on an R&D engine being tested at Santa Susana, Calif., on May 14. Officials estimate it will take about 10 days to two weeks for the necessary repairs," NSTL officials added.

Froesch described NSTL's primary role in the space program of engine testing, and operation of LANDSAT, as "going well."

He insured NSTL will always have a part in the space program, because the site will always be used for testing engines used in space.

The LANDSAT satellite was originally the Earth's Resource Technology Satellite.

LANDSAT is used to assess erosion, determine water quality, plan land use maps, contribute data for urban planning, identify geologic features of the earth, provide data for agricultural and drought research.

A single Landsat can survey nearly every area of our planet every 18 days.

the boy be moved, rather just informed the radio dispatcher about the law.

"I only told the dispatcher what should be done by law," the youth court counselor said Friday.

"I even offered to move the boy myself, but the dispatcher rightfully refused to let me move the youth," he continued.

"Now they have turned around and are trying to place this whole thing in my lap," he added.

Carter said operation of the county jail is the sheriff's responsibility, and added Sirbaugh was only trying to ensure the juvenile's rights were upheld.

"Jerry saw the youth had been placed in an adult cell where he did not belong, and informed the dispatcher the boy should be moved," Carter said Friday.

"Apparently someone from the sheriff's department put the boy in the cell with a hole in it," he explained.

"There was room in the other (juvenile) cell—there were only two prisoners in it," he added.

"We do not tell the sheriff how to run his jail. We only point out the rights of juveniles. We don't know how to run the jail," Carter said.

Carter said a 14-year-old offender who had escaped from the juvenile cell earlier is being held in the adult jail and is charged with jailbreak, but explained the boy is in the adult cells under a court order.

"In the first place, the boy shouldn't have been placed in the adult cell just because another juvenile was there. The other boy was there under a court order," Carter said.

"Secondly, the boy should have been placed in the other juvenile facility without the hole," he added.

Ladner said last week he wanted youth court officials to post a 24-hour guard in the jail to insure none of the children escaped and injured his employees.

Carter said the job of securing prisoners belongs to Ladner, and if the juvenile detention cells were separate from the sheriff's department, the Youth Court would have the responsibility of security.

"(Security) is not our job," Carter said.

"If we had jurisdiction over a juvenile facility, that would be our responsibility. As I see this, the sheriff, as chief law enforcer of the county should have that full responsibility," he added.

Waveland youth missing

A 15-year-old Waveland girl was reported missing Saturday after she failed to report to work at 6 p.m. Friday night, a spokesman from the Waveland Police Department said Saturday afternoon.

Debbie Ladner, 520 Fellgrass, was reported missing by her mother around 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

Her mother reported the child left home Friday night at 6 p.m. to go to work at the Chuckwagon Restaurant in Waveland and never reported to work, police said.

The manager of the restaurant reportedly told police he had seen the girl Friday night "in an old, beat-up car with a boy," the spokesman said.

Search...

Dense undergrowth and months of pine shavings are hampering the search through the woods.

Tartavouille said 17 inmates had fled the Mobile County Jail in January, and all but Brunsfeld have been recaptured by officials.

Details are sketchy, but the investigator said three fleeing inmates were aboard a freight train which stopped in Waveland near Nicholson Avenue in January.

One of the other inmates has been recaptured and is being held in Mobile, and the other is in a Los Angeles, California jail charged with armed robbery, Tartavouille said.

Tartavouille surmised the escapees became hungry and cold, and two of the three went to the Howard Carver home on Lakewood Drive seeking food.

Brunsfeld and the convict in Los Angeles were bitter enemies in jail, according to reports, and after allegedly burglarizing the home of some $2,600 of food and other items, went to the woods to eat.

Among the loot taken from the home was a .32 caliber nickel-plated pistol, which the convict in Mobile says the inmate in Los Angeles used to shoot Brunsfeld.

The account given Mobile officials indicate the Los Angeles prisoner, upon returning from the home alone, said, "He won't bother us anymore...I took good care of him."

Tartavouille indicated he is not hopeful a body will be found in the dense woods.

The Waveland investigator said if his men do not find a body, Mobile officials will bring the other escapee to the scene to point out where the body should be.

Plane Crash...

Road near Stennis Airport.

The sheriff's department initiated a search sometime later during daylight hours for the allegedly crashed plane.

Stennis manager and pilot Andy Ewing began an aerial search for the allegedly crashed plane at approximately 8:30 a.m.

Ewing spotted no signs of a crash. He searched an approximate 3-mile radius area from Stennis.

"If a plane had crashed an Emergency Locator Transmission signal could be heard on an emergency frequency—and no signal is coming over the radio," Ewing noted.

The pilot explained that the Federal Aviation Administration requires all planes to carry the transmitter.

Ewing speculated the plane could have simply flew over the trees and then regained altitude.

Sheriff Ladner and members of his department resumed the search with the assistance of a Coast Guard helicopter.

"We searched the area thoroughly, and found nothing," Ladner said. The sheriff searched the area near Stennis for approximately two hours.

Youth injured

as cycle overturns

A Waveland man suffered cuts and bruises after he reportedly lost control of his motorcycle late Saturday evening on Beach Boulevard in Waveland near the Gulfside Methodist Assembly, Waveland Police reported.

Mobile Medic, rushing to aid Kenny Gayaut, 21, 308 Waveland Avenue, was reportedly detained temporarily at the railroad crossing on Nicholson Avenue in Waveland as a train passed, Waveland Patrolman Tony Lunsford said.

Gayaut was taken to Hancock General Hospital for treatment, Lunsford added.

Food stamp

to increase

Low-income families will receive a 6.8 percent cost of food increase in food stamps starting July 1, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman announced.

"The 6.8 percent increase is based on the increase in the cost of foods in the department's Thrifty Food Plan between September 1978 and March 1979," said David B. Alspach, southeast regional administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service.

It is less than the 7.9 percent increase in the cost of all foods, he added, because the cost of the Thrifty Food Plan, which uses the cheapest foods available to achieve a nutritionally adequate diet, rose at a slower rate than the increase in all foods. With the increase, food stamp users will be getting an average food stamp benefit of 35 cents per person per meal, Alspach said.

ASK DOCTOR HIPPOCRATES

BY EUGENE SCHOENFELD, M.D.

Last March I wrote an article about the franchising of emergency rooms which New West magazine titled "Fast Bucks Medicine."

The article explained that almost all hospital emergency rooms are private concessions operated for profit, that government programs like Medicaid are the chief support of the emergency room industry, that few emergency room patients have emergency medical problems, and that the era of the franchised emergency room is upon us.

Two St. Louis physicians now control more than 100 emergency rooms in 21 states.

Many other groups control 30 to 40 emergency rooms, with some plans for future expansion.

Some of these emergency room groups hope to become public companies when the stock market is healthier.

Nowhere is a conflict of interest between the public good and private interests more evident than in the specter of the trading of shares in emergency rooms.

Although I also explained that the level of care in emergency rooms is better than ever, and that emergency physicians are usually well-trained specialists, many of my emergency room colleagues were upset by the article.

I was threatening their livelihood, and besides, were they any worse than other physicians?

Most emergency room doctors are younger men (and a few women) who value the time freed for them by the relatively long shifts worked in emergency rooms.

Few emergency room physicians work shifts of less than 12 hours. When the night load is light and sleep possible, 24-to 30 hour shifts are not unusual.

Since they have leisure time available, emergency room physicians that resemble those of their contemporaries more closely than those of other medical specialists.

But their means of compensation is similar. The more patients seen and the more money each one is charged, the greater their salaries.

Employed emergency room physicians generally are paid a minimum scale per hour versus percentage of the fees they charge, whichever is greater.

The emergency room concessionaire takes a percentage off the top and splits his share with the hospital.

The problem with the fee-for-service compensation in emergency rooms is the same dilemma the rest of our medical system is facing.

Preventing illness and accidents means bad economic medicine for the health industry.

In a free enterprise system, increasing the number of healers may be harmful to the nation's health, since $200,000 to $300,000 worth of illness is necessary to support each physician.

Our medical schools graduate well-trained, intelligent, highly motivated physicians. Competition for places in these medical schools and the quality of the applicants would likely decrease if physicians did not anticipate large incomes.

However humanistic medical students may be, they live in a society that values money and comfort.

Moreover, their education is determined by interests that thrive on the generation of disease. The American Medical Association could not survive without the support of the pharmaceutical industry, which depends upon selling products that treat illness after it occurs.

Few drug companies products aim to prevent disease.

As long as preventive medicine is contrary to the economic interests of health practitioners, they will reject it, consciously or unconsciously.

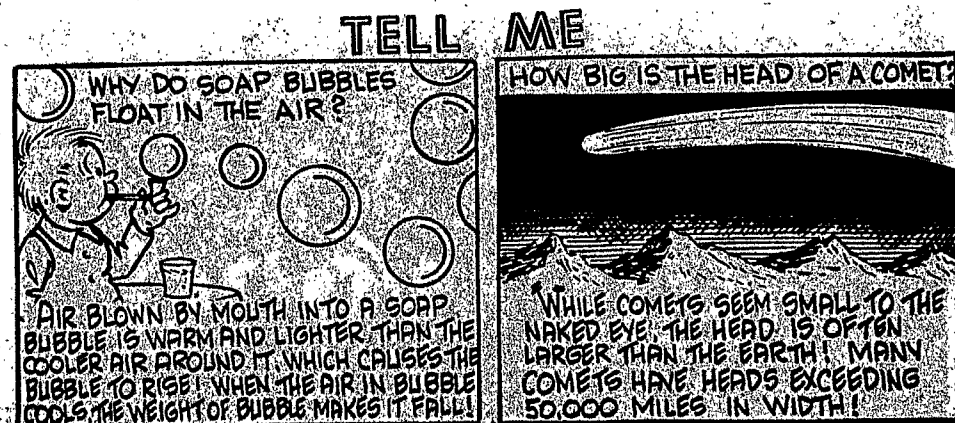

Rather than fight human nature, we must devise a health system that makes prevention profitable.

Then we'll have only to deal with problems of power and control. As Ivan Illich points out, health facilities are overused even in socialist countries.

Dr. Schoenfeld welcomes your questions but can reply to questions only within this column. Write to him in care of the Echo.

Seafood dealer converts paint vat to cook pot

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

Seafood from Gulf of Mexico waters, considered a delicacy in Hancock County, is frequently written about in terms of laws regulating the catch, availability of the different varieties, and the ups and downs of cost.

The subtleties of seafood preparation, however, are frequently passed along verbally in a guarded family tradition from one generation to the next, kept alive in a legendary fashion.

But one Waveland entrepreneur has devised his own style of dealing with the time-consuming rigors of seafood cookery in a highly non-traditional fashion.

It's called the big-pot style.

Fred Peterman, owner of a combination convenience store and retail seafood outlet, laundrette, and liquor store in the 200-block of Waveland's Coleman Avenue, is the developer of this "big-pot style."

The "style" had its beginnings about five years ago through the influence of Peterman's father-in-law, Burk

Bergeron, who was in the seafood business in Louisiana.

Bergeron inspired Peterman with the idea of starting his own seafood business.

Peterman began with one small pot on one burner boiling 70 pounds of crawfish, shrimp or a half-hamper of crabs at his Coleman Avenue Shop.

The public grew fond of his product, so he expanded his production to four separate pots on four separate burners, using his small grocery as his outlet.

Then came the big-pot style. "I was visiting my dad at the Celotex Corporation in Marrero (Louisiana) where he has been employed for 42 years. He pointed towards a scrap yard and asked if I would have any use for a big pot lying idle out there—the pot had about a half inch of paint all over it, but he told me it was stainless steel pot that had been used for about 40 years to mix paint in," Peterman recalled.

"Well, we put it in my truck and I brought it to Waveland. After about two weeks of scraping paint I set it up in my kitchen behind the grocery and got rid of the four small pots," Peterman explained.

With that massive stainless steel cauldron, Peterman can now boil some 650 pounds of crawfish or shrimp, or 14 hampers of crabs at one time.

He and his son, Lil' Fred, do all the boiling with their own special recipe at the grocery.

"With our special recipe and the big-pot style," proclaims Peterman, "I hear it's been said—you have not tasted good seasoned boiled seafood until you have tasted Peterman's."

OBITUARIES

BROTHER GERALD CORIDAN S.C.

BROTHER GERALD

Brother Gerald, S.C. (James Joseph Coridan) died at Our Lady of the Lake Medical Center in Baton Rouge, La. at 12:15 a.m. Wednesday, May 30, 1979.

Brother Gerald, 80, was the oldest Brother in the New Orleans Province of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart.

A Mass of the Resurrection was offered at Sacred Heart Church in Baton Rouge Thursday, May 31, at 11 a.m.

Burial was in Brothers' Cemetery in Bay St. Louis, also Thursday, after a wake in the Brothers' Chapel there at 2:30 p.m. and a second Mass of the Resurrection at 5 p.m.

Born in Indianapolis, Indiana, in 1899, Brother Gerald entered the Brothers of the Sacred Heart from St. John's High School in Indianapolis in 1912.

He served as teacher, principal, and religious superior during the course of his 50 years in the classroom.

In 1966, Brother Gerald retired from the classroom and assumed the position of hallway prefect at Catholic High in Baton Rouge. This was the job he was performing when he felt weak and was taken to the hospital a week before his death.

During his career, Brother Gerald served at 10 different institutions of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart, including St. Aloysius in New Orleans; St. Stanislaus in Bay St. Louis, from 1924 to 1927 and 1949 to 1951; Catholic Boys Home and McGill Institute in Mobile; St. Aloysius in Vicksburg; Menard in Alexandria; Thibodeaux College in Thibodeaux; and Catholic High in Baton Rouge.

Brother Gerald spent a total of nine years at McGill in Mobile; 19 years at St. Aloysius in New Orleans; and 17 years at Catholic High in Baton Rouge.

Brother Gerald is survived by a niece, Mrs. Marie Cutsnaw of Indianapolis, Indiana; a nephew, William Shover, and a brother-in-law Claude Shover, both of Phoenix, Arizona.

Instead of flowers, contributions to the Brother Gerald Memorial Scholarship Fund would be preferred.

Edmond Fahey Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis was in charge of arrangements.

PAUL EVANOVICH

A visitation for Paul Peter Evanovich was Friday night from 6 until 10 at Bradford-O'Keefe Funeral Home in Biloxi, where a rosary was recited.

The funeral procession left the funeral home chapel Saturday at 12:45 p.m. and went to the Cathedral of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary for a 1 p.m. Mass.

He was buried in the Biloxi Cemetery.

International Paper dedicates research center

Community, government, and forest industry representatives last week attended dedication ceremonies for International Paper Company's Natchez Forest Research Center.

The newly constructed facility south of Natchez is conducting IP's southern forest regeneration research aimed at increasing survival and growth rate of pine and hardwood seedlings.

Research projects at the center are expected to improve the productivity and the quality of forestlands throughout the South. Increasing productivity while maintaining multiple-use values is the goal of IP's intensive forest research programs.

One of the major projects at the center is in mycorrhiza research. Mycorrhiza is a special type of fungi that forms a mutually beneficial relationship with the root system of the host plant.

Proper management of this fungi increases the young tree's ability to absorb nutrients from the soil and fight certain diseases.

Application of mycorrhiza research findings could produce a 50 percent increase in growth in young pine seedlings and an even faster growth in young hardwood seedlings.

In Mississippi, IP owns 940,000 acres of multiple-use forestlands with an additional 115,000 acres in leases, including extensive holdings in Hancock County.

These forests provide fiber needs for pulp and paper mills at Moss Point, Natchez, and Vicksburg, and a wood products complex at Wiggins.

Each year, some 4,000 company employees contribute over $90 million in salaries and benefits to the state's economy.

Darwin Fender, IP's manager of forest productivity and research, stated the Natchez Forest Research Center is part of a commitment to expand the company's research activities. "Achievements here will help ensure that current and future needs for wood will be available," Fender said.

John Nugent, manager of the Natchez Forest Research Center, said the center's staff of 21 consists of forest research scientists, forest managers, research specialists and administrative personnel.

The center is composed of a large greenhouse, research laboratory, cold storage facility, 26-acre research nursery, caretaker's home and office building.

In addition to the mycorrhiza project, scientists at the center are involved in the research of hardwood management, nursery practices, herbicides and tree physiology.

Parks and Playgrounds

registration continues

Registration for all Bay St. Louis Parks & Playground summer programs is still underway.

Registration for Tee Ball & Girls Minor League softball will be held on Tuesday, June 5 from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon at McDonald Field.

Girls from ages 8-12 are eligible to participate in softball and boys ages 7 and 8 are welcome to participate in Tee-Ball.

Registration for Arts & Crafts will be held Friday, June 8 from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon at the Parks and Playgrounds Office located in the Valena C. Jones Building on the Old Spanish Trail. Arts and Crafts for five and six-year-olds are held 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., Tuesday and Thursday at the Parks office beginning June 12.

Arts & Crafts for seven to 12-year-olds will be held from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday at the Park's office beginning June 11.

For further information call the Parks & Playgrounds Office at 467-4440.

NASA names Seibel Michoud manager

Dr. Mathias P. Seibel has been named manager of the Michoud Assembly Facility in New Orleans, an element of the Space Shuttle Projects Office at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala.

The external tanks which provide propellant for the Shuttle Orbiters are manufactured at Michoud by the tank prime contractor, the Martin Marietta Corporation.

One of the huge tanks is used in each Shuttle launch.

Dr. Seibel, who succeeds Robert C. Littlefield who died May 12, has been with the Marshall Center since 1965.

For the past five years he has served in the technical staff of the director of the Space Sciences Laboratory, Science and Engineering Directorate. He was deputy director, and later director, of the former Manufactured Engineering Laboratory during 1965-1974. Born in Witten, West Germany, in 1924, Dr. Seibel earned his bachelor and Ph.D. degrees in mechanical engineering at the University of Bristol in England. He became a United States citizen in 1962.

The Butcher Shop

with supermarket prices.

How much do you need? Ask the man who knows.

You're going to have some questions about meat. No matter how many years you've been shopping and cooking. Your A&P Butcher Shop manager is a meat expert. He'll be happy to talk to you about the right cut for your favorite recipe. Or how many pounds it takes to feed eight people. And he'll gladly cut something you don't see in the meat case.

It's even better than an old-fashioned butcher shop.

Because the meat is our meat.

And the standards are our standards.

ADVERTISED ITEM POLICY

FORAGE

Warm Season Perennial Grasses make a large amount of their initial spring growth in May. For top production, these grasses must be adequately fertilized and weeds controlled in them. Weeds compete for fertilizer, light and moisture, and reduce yield and quality of pastures and hay.

Fertilizer and lime needs should be determined by soil test. If soil tests are not available, apply 400 to 600 pounds of 13-13-13 fertilizer to warm season perennials such as bahia grass and bermuda grass. The hybrid bermuda grass will need 100 to 200 pounds of additional nitrogen in split applications during the summer for high hay production.

If legumes such as white clover are used with summer pastures, withhold nitrogen or apply at low rates to encourage the clover.

SORGHUM PLANTING

You need to plant sorghum before May 30. If planting is delayed until June 10 or later, yields are reduced up to 30 percent.

You should fertilize sorghum according to a soil test. If no soil test is made, apply 60 pounds of phosphorus and potassium per acre on sorghum to be used for grain. Or sorghum to be used for silage, apply an additional 60 pounds of potassium.

SUMMER GRAZING

There's still time to plant temporary summer forages such as sorghum-sudangrass hybrid sudangrass and pearl millet. While May is the best time to plant these crops, they can be planted in June or even July with adequate moisture. The crops grow rapidly and can usually be grazed or harvested for hay within 45 days from seeding.

Plant 25 pounds of seed broadcast per acre if you will use the crops for grazing. For hay, plant 35 pounds. You can reduce the seeding rate on pearl millet about 10 pounds because the seeds are considerably smaller than sorghum. If you want to plant on 14-inch rows to reduce seed costs and trampling by cattle, use 15 pounds of seed per acre. To seed 14-inch rows, close up every other hole in a standard grain drill.

TOMATO DISEASES

Every home gardener wants red, ripe tomatoes. However, to get them you will need to control a number of tomato diseases. The most serious are blight, septoria leaf spot and fusarium wilt.

The fungicides Maneb and Chlorothalonil will control most tomato diseases. Both can be mixed with insecticides so you can control insects and diseases at the same time.

For more information on tomato diseases, contact the county Extension Office.

SOYBEAN WEED CONTROL

Early control of weeds in soybeans is the key to producing a good crop. Most weeds do not begin to reduce soybean yields until after the first four weeks. However, if allowed to compete for longer periods, yield losses rapidly increase.

Broadleaf weeds such as cocklebur, morningglory and sicklepod cause the most damage. Preemergence cracking stage and early directed sprays may all be needed to control these weeds.

Careful follow-up to early treatments is needed for maximum weed control. PREPLANT HERBICIDES Soybean producers can apply the herbicides Basalin, Cobex, Prowl and Tordon and Trellan up until planting time. You should incorporate all of these herbicides into the soil immediately after application for best control of grasses and pigweed.

Do not apply on windy days or to wet and cloudy days. If you plan to tank-mix Sencor or Lexone with Prowl, Tordon or Trellan, delay application until at least two weeks before planting.

ANIMAL DISEASES

All livestock producers should watch their herds carefully for signs of infectious diseases following flooding. The incidence of such diseases as, blackleg, malignant edema, anthrax and foot rot are usually much higher following flood conditions.

All animals that die suddenly after flooding should be examined by a veterinarian. Contact your veterinarian or the County Extension office for further information concerning control of these diseases.

SOYBEAN INOCULATION

You should apply a fresh source of inoculant when planting soybeans on land that has not been in soybeans during the last three years, or for the first three years that beans are planted on new land. For best results, use a separate source of inoculant. If you're using fungicides or molybdenum, add them along with the inoculant at planting time.

WHEREAS, default has occurred in the payment of the indebtedness secured by said deed(s) of trust, and the United States of America, as Beneficiary, has authorized and instructed me as Trustee, to foreclose said deed(s) of trust by advertisement and sale at public auction in accordance with the statutes made and provided therefor.

THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that pursuant to the power of sale contained in said deed(s) of trust and in accordance with the statutes made and provided therefor, the said deed(s) of trust will be foreclosed and the property covered thereby and hereinafter described will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the front door of the County Courthouse in the town of Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, in the aforesaid County at eleven o'clock A.M., on the 18th day of June, 1979, to satisfy the indebtedness now due under and secured by said deed(s) of trust. The premises to be sold are described as:

Commencing at the SW corner of the NW 1/4 of SW 1/4, Section 33, Township 8 South, Range 14 West; thence East a distance of 28 feet to a corner fence post set in the Eastern right of way of an unimproved road for the place of beginning; thence North 65 degrees East along the Eastern right of way of the aforesaid road a distance of 110 feet to an iron stake; thence East a distance of 200 feet to an iron stake; thence South 65 degrees West a distance of 110 feet to an iron stake set on the Southern line of the above-mentioned NW 1/4 of SW 1/4; thence West a distance of 200 feet to the place of beginning. Said land containing 1/4 acre, more or less, and being part of the NW 1/4 of SW 1/4 of Section 33, Township 8 South, Range 14 West, Hancock County, Mississippi.

May 27, 1979 Robert W. Smith Trustee

Duly authorized to act in the premises by instrument dated June 30, 1978, and recorded in Book 210, Page 359-362, of the records of the aforesaid County and State.

Top ANG award dedicated to C.L. Sullivan

Beginning with its presentation for 1979 at the annual meeting of the Non-Commissioned Officers Association, the Airman of the Year Award for the Mississippi Air National Guard will be known as the Charles L. Sullivan Leadership Award, a spokesman for the Mississippi Military Department said.

The recent change was made to honor the memory of Sullivan, who was killed in the crash of his private airplane near his hometown of Clarkdale.

Sullivan, a long-time Air National Guardsman and former Assistant Adjutant General, was a Brigadier General and Commander of Headquarters, Mississippi Air National Guard at the time of his death.

The award goes annually to the enlisted member of the Mississippi Air Guard selected by a committee on the basis of exemplary leadership, dedication, performance of duty, and military appearance. It is a highly competitive process and a presentation in which Sullivan was personally interested.

The People's Bank of Mississippi sponsors the award.
